PLAGIARISM/CHEATING

Plagiarism (Intentional or Unintentional), collusion, or cheating (in any form) will result in an “F” in the course. Each student’s work must be original and his or hers own work. Cheating will be defined as using unauthorized materials during an exam (notes, books, cell phones, etc.), using, or being in possession of a pirated exam, copying from or “conferencing” with another student during a test, and plagiarizing journals, papers, or other written assignments.

Any work which requires research requires appropriate documentation. Sources must be documented completely and accurately. Failure to accurately and completely cite your research sources will be considered as plagiarism; therefore, resulting in an “F” in the course.

If a student is directly observed to be cheating or if there is ample evidence of cheating then the student guilty of cheating will result in an “F” for the course.

When a grade of “F” is issued for the above reasons, then the numeric grade will be recorded as a “0” (Zero) for the semester.

ONLINE CLASS WORK:

Online classes require a greater degree of independence and responsibility than traditional classes. You must learn to pace yourself, and find time in your schedule to work on the class. Online classes typically take as much time as traditional classes overall but allow more flexibility with the time. You still have to put in the time. If you allow yourself to neglect your studies you will fall quickly behind and end up performing below your expectations. You should also have a reliable computer or access to a computer. Computer problems or lack of internet are not a valid reason for not completing work by the due date. If you are dual credit high school student, you must plan around your extra curriculum and work schedule.

CORRESPONDENCE WITHIN THE CLASS:

Communication regarding the online class (emails, turning in assignment, etc.) should be done using the Mail/Messages Link within Blackboard . I will typically respond to e-mails within 24 hours within Blackboard. I expect the same response time from students. Do not expect response on weekends. I am typically unavailable from Friday beginning at 8pm until Monday morning at 6am. There may be times I check my emails and text on the weekend. However, you should not wait until the last minute before something is due before trying to contact me. The due dates for assignments will not be changed and extensions will not be given. All assignment must be submitted in Blackboard through the ASSIGNMENT SUBMISSION BOX or attached files. The attachment must be in Microsoft Word or RTF. Do not send attachments using MS Works. If I can’t open it, then I can’t grade your assignment.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

The college experience frequently questions, researches, evaluates and assesses controversial issues. The classroom may serve as a forum for the presentation of a variety of ideas, none of which are intended injuriously.

Course Policies

*Once an assignment or exam due date has passed, you will no longer see that assignment or exam on the CALENDAR. Once an assignment or exam has passed, no extension will be given be and no late work will be accepted after the two weeks of the course has passed.

You are expected to log into Blackboard weekly.

Research has shown a cause and effect relationship between attendance and college success. Students with more than three absences from the course will receive an academic penalty (which is spelled out by the instructor).

Additional Information

This is a fully online course which will take place over Fall 2024 full 16-week semester.
